A new section on ideas or thing about the NSCC P-Patch

We may need your assistance and supplies for our P-Patch shed. We

Free Toilets for Homeowners

Don't get stuck with a high bill from a leaky toilet!

New Income Guidelines: See if You Qualify!

| Number in Household | Total Monthly Income |
|---------------------|----------------------|
| 1                   | $2,506              |
| 2                   | $3,277              |
| 3                   | $4,048              |
| 4                   | $4,819              |

Qualified customers in Seattle can get up to two free water-efficient toilets and have them installed by a licensed plumber for free if they meet our income guidelines.

Toilets are the main source of water use in the home, accounting for approximately 30% of residential indoor water use. Most households can easily save thousands of gallons of water and more than $100 a year on utility bills just by installing these efficient toilets. Plus older toilets often leak and you're responsible for paying for any extra water. That could cost $200 or more a year! Learn more.

City Updating the Bicycle Master Plan

Get involved with the update – provide input!

SEATTLE—To help further enhance cycling in Seattle, the Seattle Department of Transportation (SDOT) is pleased to be embarking on an update of the Bicycle Master Plan (BMP). Originally scheduled to be updated after five years, the BMP has been effective at guiding improvements to the City’s bicycle system over the last five years, including the installation of 129 miles of bike lanes and sharrows, 98 miles of signed routes and 2,230 bike parking spaces. An update to the plan presents an opportunity to include fast-evolving best practices and new thinking in bicycle facilities, safety, and design that will result in an even more connected bicycle network for all Seattle residents seeking to ride for recreation, shopping or commuting.

The Seattle City Council included $250,000 from the General Fund in the 2012 budget to complete the update, and provided guidance that the updated plan include neighborhood greenways and separated bicycle facilities to help to encourage more people to ride their bicycles for all trips. The updated plan will include a clear prioritization process, which will help direct where future bicycle investments occur.

“We’re so excited to see the City planning a network of safe, comfortable streets that connect us to our neighborhoods, whether we walk, drive, ride a bike, push a stroller, or move by wheelchair. The Bike Master Plan update is a critical step towards a healthier and more equitable Seattle,” says Cathy Tuttle, Coordinator of Seattle Neighborhood Greenways.

“The 2012 Bicycle Master Plan update brings an incredible and timely opportunity to create and realize a vision for a community that bicycles, where bicycling is normal, convenient and safe for everyone,” says Chuck Ayers, Executive Director of Cascade Bicycle Club.

To kick off the 2012 Bicycle Master Plan update, SDOT has created two new tools: an online survey and web-based mapping tool. Both can be found at www.seattle.gov/transportation/bikemaster\_survey.htm.

This is a great opportunity to let SDOT know how people currently use existing bicycle facilities and what residents would like to see for the future, as well as help us prioritize the issues most important to the community. The survey has been translated into six different languages – Korean, Somali, Spanish, Tagalog, Chinese and Vietnamese – which are available at the same link.

“It is perfect timing to launch the Bicycle Master Plan update, as May is National Bike Month and there is a lot of energy surrounding bicycling and its consideration to make it an even more viable mode of transportation,” said Councilmember Tom Rasmussen, Chair of the Transportation Committee. “I encourage everyone living and working in Seattle will participate in the update by filling out the online survey and providing input using the mapping tool.”

SDOT will host two open houses in June to gather input for the Bicycle Master Plan Update. For more information about this project, please go to our website: <http://www.seattle.gov/transportation/bikemaster.htm> or send an email to: bmpupdate@seattle.gov to join the mailing list.

Northgate Elementary School Summer Program

An exciting program is coming to Northgate Elementary School this summer and they need your help.

Why should you help? Have you ever wondered what is happening to our education? One thing that happens every year is the 'Summer Slide'. What is the Summer Slide you ask, it is when kids have spent the whole school year working hard to learn their ABC's and then summer comes; they regress and when school starts in the Fall their teachers must re-teach, sometimes for the first two months of the school year. This summer program hopes to minimize that slide by offering a summer reading program that is FUN and educational.

Where do you, neighbor, come in? Your help is needed to make this program work. It will take a few dedicated volunteers to help the summertime teachers with morning reading and afternoon enrichment which will include art, gardening/environmental sustainability, technology and physical activity. Just a few hours a day or a week will make the difference.

Also several family events are in the planning to support the Summer Program and to celebrate Back to School in August. By volunteering, you can participate in the pilot project for the City of Seattle and Northgate Elementary, and play a role in leveling the playing field for students in the Northgate neighborhood. You can contribute by helping out on meaningful family engagement opportunities for students participating in the Northgate Summer Program and help the school build stronger community relations. These events will give families a chance to celebrate the academic and enrichment work accomplished through the program.

For more information please contact: Thomas Whittemore, Dept. of Neighborhoods District Coordinator 206-684-4096 Thomas.Whittemore@seattle.gov

Don't wait! This program starts soon.

Community Supported Agriculture -CSA

What is a CSA?

The first official CSA farms originated in Asia and Japan, and were introduced to North America in the early 1980s. In a traditional CSA, people in the community invest in a local farm by purchasing a "share" of that farm's harvest. Shareholders--or members--in turn receive a portion of the farm's produce every week, typically for 20 weeks of the growing season (although some CSAs now go year round). CSAs form strong connections between community members and farmers. Shares are generally paid for prior to the growing season in order to provide CSA farmers income needed for the costs associated with the beginning of the growing season. In this sense, sales of CSA shares create a market for the farmer in a time when the amount of produce available for sale is limited. The price of a CSA share is meant to be fair for both producer and consumer. Because the producer saves money by avoiding distributors and retailers, savings can be passed on to consumers who pay less than they would at grocery stores or farmers markets for the same products. Still, paying the true cost of organic produce from small sustainable farms is a difficult feat for many households in Whatcom County.

Local CSA's:

- Growing Washington and its partners work to distribute the bounty of Whatcom agriculture throughout the community, regardless of income. CSA program: Local Choice delivery to King County residents and businesses allows for individual choice of items. <http://www.growingwashington.org>
- Oxbow Organic Farm, located in the Snoqualmie Valley, is a 25 acre mixed vegetable, tree fruit and berry farm bordering an 'oxbow' lake (hence the name). Our produce is available throughout the greater Seattle at farmers markets, restaurants, independent grocery stores and, most importantly, through our CSA. <http://www.oxbow.org/>
